Sindhu Joshi of Maheshwar, at Narmadalaya, Lepa Punarvas. These girls live in remote tribal villages of Satpuda mountains. For the first time they travelled in a four wheeler vehicle to reach Lepa Punarvas. None of them knew reading and writing skills.

Creation of water reservoir and well

Lepa is the first village on the left bank of river Narmada which would come under submergence, whenever the Shri Maheshwar Hydel Power Project becomes functional. The rehabilitation process of the villagers is going on. Almost 180 families have been shifted to the new location Lepa Punarvas (Bairagarh) since last 10 years. However, provision for supply of water has not yet made by the government or the Shri Maheshwar Hydel Power Project. More than seventy well off families have dug their own bore wells which resulted in depletion of the ground water level to 750 ft. The poor families are the worst sufferers. Hence with the co-operation of local people, Nimar Abhyuday took initiative and started digging work of a water reservoir (तालाब) and a well in a four bigha land owned by the gram panchayat. If we get sufficient funds for this work, it will be hopefully completed before the rainy season of 2021. Plantation of saplings in twenty bighas of land around this water reservoir will also be undertaken by Nimar Abhyuday with the help of local people.

We do not take any government funds for this project.

Hydroponics

Nimar Abhyudaya Rural Management And Development Association (NARMADA) has always strived to adopt new techniques and technologies for the progress of farmers of the region. With the same spirit its coordinator Digvijay Singh Chouhan led a three member team for a training in organic farming at Bodke wadi, Maan Village on the western outskirts of Pune, Maharashtra. The other members were Shankar Kewat and Sanjeev Namdev. During the three days of the extensive training, they learned some very important practises and techniques for the organic farming. The camp organised by Mr Dnyaneshwar Bodke, the founder chairman of the Abhinav Farmers' Club, has led special emphasis on utility of Geer cow for farming and need for adopting hydroponics to provide quality feed for the cattle. Armed with the knowledge, our team took upon itself the task of improving the Goshala (cowshed) at our Ashram at Lepa Punarvas. They began adopting the principles of cattle management techniques. Under Digvijay Singh's supervision, Shankar Kewat and all students of Ramkrishna Technical Institute have fabricated the hydroponics structure of the size $10 \times 15 \times 8$ to keep 60 trays using one inch square iron pipes & green net. It was immediately put to use to grow green feed for the cows. After some initial menace of rats and rodents, our Goshala team has succeeded in growing maize & wheat grass per for Ashram's cows and calves.
